With Finances Assured, Work on Track Lowering May Begin Before Monday.

BROOKS-CALLOWAY READY TO START

Trains Must Be Rerouted to Terminal Station to Allow Beginning of Excavation Work.

Another $397,000 was deposited to the credit of the city Tuesday to aid in construction of the Pryor street and Central avenue viaducts when the N. C. & St. L. and Georgia railways delivered their pro rata shares of the erection costs to local banks.

This opens the way for actual start on track lowering by Monday, and it was hinted Tuesday that it may be begun even earlier, possibly the latter part of the week.

Members of the firm of Brooks-Calloway company, contractors, to whom the track depression award has been given by action of council and Mayor I. N. Ragland, declared Tuesday that they are ready to begin excavation just as soon as details connected with shifting of trains from the Union to the Terminal station can be completed, and public utilities companies can arrange to carry forward readjustments of telephone, gas, water, sewage and other conduits.

The Dixie Limited and the Dixie Flyer of the N. C. & St. L., and the Florida Limited of the L. & N. railroad, all Florida trains, will be rerouted to arrive and leave from the Terminal station, instead of at the Union station. Baggage will be checked, tickets sold and all other business transacted over these trains will be conducted from the Terminal station. All other trains operating into and out of the Union station will continue to do so as the six tracks will be lowered in pairs, and trains will operate on the four remaining ones while work is being done on the other two.

Railroad and city officials completed signing contracts authorizing start of the track depression work Monday afternoon and the railroads and the city accepted the bond of the Brooks-Calloway company. The city has not yet signed the formal contract with the Brooks-Calloway company, but probably will do so today.

6 MORE TAX LAW CHANGES OKAYED

Installment Sales, Consolidated Returns, Liens, Property Transfers, Limitations, Included.

Washington, November 15.—(AP)—The house ways and means committee today approved six and rejected one of the score or more of recommendations submitted by the advisory board of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue legislation, looking to simplifying the administration of the tax laws.

The suggestions approved were those relating to installment sales, consolidated returns, federal tax liens, transfers of property, the bar of the statute of limitations and the period of limitations.

The committee rejected the advisory board's proposal for revision of section 220 of the revenue law which deals with so-called holding corporations or corporations which fail to declare dividends. Chairman Green said that several substitutes were offered but none adopted and there was a possibility that this section might be left as it is.

LABOR TO SEEK GOVERNMENT HELP IN MINE BATTLE

Governor Fisher, of Ohio, Will Also Be Applied to for Probe of Misuse of Power.

INJUNCTION'S USE IS CONDEMNED

William Green, Head of National Federation of Labor, Heads Both Committees Named.

Pittsburgh, Pa., November 15.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor, through its officers and the heads of national and international unions affiliated with it, today voted unanimously to lay before President Coolidge the cause of 130,000 striking miners in central and western Pennsylvania and Ohio and to demand from Governor John S. Fisher an immediate investigation into charges of misuse of power by agencies of the state government against 5,000 mine workers in the two Pennsylvania districts. Forty-five thousand miners are on strike in Ohio.

The action was taken by the labor leaders after two days of consideration of the mining situation at an emergency conference here, which was also attended by officials of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor and of various central trades councils of the west.

The plan of action was contained in a report submitted by a special committee headed by William L. Hutcheson, of the carpenters' union, which condemned the use of injunctions in labor disputes and the activities of coal and iron police and other officers employed by the mining companies. The report also called upon organized labor forces of Pennsylvania to renew their activities in organizing the unorganized workers of the state into trade unions and appealed to all labor unions for "monies, food and clothing" to aid the striking miners.

William Green, president of the national labor federation, was named to head the two committees directed to call upon President Coolidge and Governor Fisher. Acting immediately upon the authorization of the conference, Green obtained an appointment to see the president.

U. S. Duchess Opens Fight For Divorce

Vine-Covered Love Nest of Defendant Is Described in Suit.

Bridgeport, Conn., November 15.—(United News).—A vine-covered love nest where a duke maintained a modest little establishment while his American bride lamented the day she had become a duchess, were described in Fairfield county superior court this afternoon.

It was the opening of the divorce suit of the Duchess of Cornwallis against her titled husband whom she, Miss Elsie Moore, society girl, had married in 1908. The duchess, charged with infidelity, has asked for divorce and custody of three children.

Fashionably dressed, a fur coat thrown back over her shoulders, a tiny cloth hat on her head, the duchess sat beside her lawyers, the State Attorney William H. Conley, of Bridgeport, and John Shepherd of New York, while a deposition in the case was read.

The deposition, made by John F. Huddleston, United States vice consul at Milan, in May, 1926, described the daily routine of Don Marino, Duke of Cornwallis, as it was observed by Detective Luigi Manetti at Milan.

"Each morning at 10:30 o'clock," read the deposition, "the duke leaves his palace for a walk in the park. At 2 p. m. he arrives at his club where he breakfasts.

"After breakfast he goes to a little house on the outskirts where he keeps a three-room apartment. This is said to be the home of Marie Lorenzoni (corespondent in the suit).

"The duke stays here until 6:30 p. m., when he returns to the palace to dress for dinner. He again meets Signorina Lorenzoni at the fashionable cafe San Carlo, where they dine."

The duke and his companion top off their day with a visit to the movies, according to the deposition.

When the movies are finished, the deposition states, the duke and the signorina return to the little apartment. Just after dawn the duke is said to return to his palace.

At this point Judge John R. Boothe interrupted the reading and adjourned court until 10:30 tomorrow morning.

During the reading of the deposition Philo C. Calhoun, attorney for the duke, who was not in court, objected from time to time to portions on the ground that they were immaterial, hearsay evidence or the opinion of the deponent.

Husband of Ruth Elder Learns Price of Fame

LOSES WIFE, GOES TO PANAMA ALONE

BY SAM LOVE.

New York, November 15.—(United News).—After taking an awe-inspiring beating at the hands of fame and the fates, Lyle Womack, the husband of Ruth Elder, sailed back toward Panama alone on the liner Christobol today.

The broad-shouldered young man who inadvertently married a world heroine suffered a last blow just before the boat sailed.

He had his famous wife's farewell shot short by the bark, of her press agent, who had contract for her to sign and didn't want to keep theatrical men waiting in their Broadway offices.

Any lingering doubts that young Womack may have had as to whether he was an asset or a liability was dispelled by the press agent's impatient "hurry up—hurry up."

His wife did hurry up. She obeyed and the farewell scene registered by the Womacks ended thus: Ruth casting an apologetic glance over her shoulder and being hustled into a taxi-car; Lyle putting up a front to reporters that it was the most natural thing in the world for a person as famous as Ruth not to be able to wait 15 minutes until the boat sailed.

Just previous to this, Ruth and Lyle had posed in an affectionate hug. It was for grinding movie cameras. Then the girl aviator went to talk to some friends while Lyle had to see that his baggage was not aboard. Did any of the numerous directors of desecrations surrounding his wife assign someone to this task? They did not. Lyle carried his own luggage, unaided.

Lyle then came back for the real good-bye. It was half of what he had made the long trip from the Canal Zone for. The other half being to add his "Hello" to that of New York when his wife arrived.

As Ruth started to accompany him up the stairs to the boat, Harry Rickbacher, who appointed himself guardian of the aviatrix's time, affairs and contracts, called, "Hurry up, Ruth! We've got contracts to sign."

So Ruth gave her husband a few more hurried kisses and got into a taxicab which dashed upon to the theatrical district and affairs of importance.

"You know," he said, "I would have been a fine fellow not to have come to New York to give Ruth a few kisses and wish her good luck, now wouldn't I? I had no idea of injecting myself into her fame or glory."

Nobody had accused the big young star of it.

"Ruth and I understand each other," he added hesitantly. "And when this is all over she will come down and live with me. But why should I put in now? She flew to fame and she deserves the praise."

"I would rather not have Ruth fly again," Womack mused. "But if she insists on going to Europe next year, I hope I can be at the docks and if she slips down, we will go down together."

With this thought in mind, Womack, who had effaced himself as much as possible for a week and resembled no slurs cast upon him except an unhappy printed phrase referring to him as "Mr. Elder," started back to Balboa, where he does something or other in the electrical supply business.

PROHIBITORS ANSWER CRITICS

Borah and Glass Issue Statements Giving Their Positions on 14th, 15th and 18th Amendments.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, November 15.—Challenges directed to prohibition enthusiasts to couple enforcement of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments with the eighteenth amendment, drew fire from two dry senators today.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, made public a letter to Senator Edgar, republican, New Jersey, who had suggested that the Idaho senator, in his regard for enforcement of one provision of the constitution, should extend his activities to its sections relating to negro suffrage.

In the letter, Senator Borah said he was perfectly willing to have a plank included in the republican platform favoring enforcement of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments, as

Mind in Daze, Says Slayer Of Choctaw

Former Chief of Tribe Declares He Doesn't Remember Killing.

Antlers, Okla., November 15.—(AP)—His mind in a daze over the alleged mistreatment of young tribal girls by Abner Battiist, a Choctaw brave, Major Victor M. Locke, Jr., former chief of the tribe, today on the witness stand, declared he was not aware that he shot and killed Battiist, for whose murder he is on trial.

Major Locke, former superintendent of the five civilized tribes of Indians, high in the councils of the Choctaws, is charged with shooting the young brave with a rifle as Battiist stood on the front porch of his home September 16, last.

Attracted in considerable number to the little courthouse to await the outcome of their "big chief's" fight for life, bronzed tribesmen in fervent anticipation watched the process of pale face justice. For the first time today, some understood the trend of testimony when Choctaw witnesses in their own tongue told through an interpreting of events that led to the slaying.

Pondering over the tribesman's behavior, his advances on two Indian girls who were Major Locke's wards, and enraged by Battiist's assault on "Uncle Dick" Locke, the defendant, 57-year-old father, the former chief, said he failed to recall the shooting.

He was asked pointedly by the prosecutor: "Did you kill Battiist?" "I don't know," was the reply. He did not know of the killing, he said, until he had been told of it.

Immaculately attired in his characteristic style, Major Locke related how he had driven Battiist from his home after he had struck "Uncle Dick" and instances of Battiist's alleged mistreatment of girls. Major Locke said he incurred Battiist's enmity by having the allowance of Lena Battiist, the young Choctaw's divorced wife, reduced from $400 to $100 a week. He had used his influence with the Indian agency to do this, Major Locke said, believing Battiist was spending her money in riotous living. Battiist's wife was a distant cousin of Major Locke. Her wealth consists of a considerable amount in land and oil, and is taken care of for her by the government.

Jim Turner, a Choctaw, testified in his tongue through an interpreter, that Battiist threatened Major Locke's life. Similar testimony also was given through an interpreter by Silas Cole, aged Choctaw Presbyterian preacher.

OLD TARIFF RATES RETURNED BY PACT

New Scale With France Will Become Effective Next Monday on Provisional Treaty.

Paris, November 15.—(United News).—Under the terms of the Franco-American provisional tariff agreement, which will be published Wednesday, the bulk of American exports to France will return to the old tariff schedule, American Charge d'Affaires Sheldon Whitehouse said tonight.

A few rates have been modified: the minimum French general tariff, said Whitehouse, who arranged the agreement in the absence of Ambassador Myron T. Herrick.

Whitehouse believes that negotiations looking toward a permanent tariff treaty will not be completed until early 1929.

The new tariff scale will be put into effect next Monday, thus ending an exchange of notes between the two governments which began when France increased tariffs on American imports on September 6.

The provisional accord will be published in the government's official journal, but the text is so long and complicated that government printers will be working on it all night and the official hour of publication will be delayed.

Permanent treaty negotiations will be held until Ambassador Herrick's return. Even then they will drag along pending the French elections, which will fix the political complexion of the chamber of deputies and decide the fate of the Poincare government.

American tariffs were revised on an upward scale when France and Germany completed a commercial treaty which provided for favored-nation treatment.

The tariff increase brought a note from the United States government and the raising of tariffs on certain French imports. France indicated its willingness to make a provisional treaty whereby tariffs on most American products would return to the old scale, provided the United States would reciprocate.

THRILLS ENLIVEN TRIAL OF REMUS, SLAYER OF WIFE

Star Witness for Defense Arrives on Scene, and State Charges One of Its Witnesses Is Missing.

BY PAUL W. WHITE.

Cincinnati, November 15.—(United News).—The mysterious arrival of the star witness for the defense, and a charge by the prosecution that one of its most important witnesses had been spirited away, enlivened an otherwise dull day Tuesday in the trial of George Remus, charged with first degree murder of his wife, Imogene.

Events in the courtroom, where an eleventh juror was selected before adjournment, were obscured temporarily by these important developments outside.

First, Franklin L. Dodge, Jr., a former department of justice agent, came to town. Dodge is the man Remus hopes to use in proving that he killed Mrs. Remus because she had been unfaithful to her marriage vows. Dodge, the defendant asserts, stole his wife's love and plotted with her to dispose of her husband.

Spirited Away.

Second, Edward Hennekes, investigator for the prosecutor's office, announced that Mrs. George Conners, wife of Remus' former secretary, had been spirited away while he was interviewing her about the case in her home.

Those developments added glamor to the trial. They smacked of just such dark intrigue as one would expect in the trial of one who is known as the millionaire "king of bootleggers."

Dodge had not been subpoenaed as a state's witness, but he telephoned Charles P. Taft II, country prosecutor, from a local hotel.

Later the hotel management said that he was not registered there, and the belief grew that he had gone into hiding to avoid service of a subpoena by the defense, which is eager for his story.

There also was a report that Dodge had secreted himself because he "feared for his life," and although no verification was at hand, it made things more interesting.

Lights Went Out.

Hennekes, the prosecutor's investigator, talked with Mrs. Conners at her home Monday night, he reported to Taft, but during the interview the lights went off "suddenly," as though they had been switched off "down in the cellar."

In the belief that discretion was advisable, Hennekes went out into the dark hall and telephoned Walter K. Sibbald and John C. Clippinger, assistant prosecutors. They arrived, but tonight.

A motor car, containing two or three men, had sped off before the trial.

CAROLINA LAWYER NAMED IN HOLDUP

Convict Claims He Turned Over His Share of Loot to Two Prominent Florence Citizens.

Florence, S. C., November 15.—(AP)—A. J. Fowler, Jr., Florence lawyer, and his father, who holds a responsible position with the Atlantic Coast Line railway, were arrested here today following their implication in the holdup last March of the Bank of Cowards, near here, in a confession said by officers to have been made by Thad Smith, now serving a 16 to 20 year sentence in the state penitentiary for manslaughter.

Smith's reported confession is said to set forth that he and Carl Fowler, a brother of the 1 year, robbed the bank of $5,000 and that he turned his part of the loot over to A. J. Fowler and his father. Carl Fowler is under indictment for alleged participation in the holdup.

He is about 25 years old and was graduated from the University of South Carolina. The senior Fowler is a supervisor of section foremen for the railroad.

Smith, who was convicted of the killing of Roy McKay at a country dance, is said to have made his confession to L. C. Johnson, one of Governor Richards' detectives. His arrest, along with Carl Fowler, was caused by W. A. Newman, of a private detective agency.

The bank robbery took place some time after the homicide which involved Smith. In his reported confession, the latter said he hid his money in a rooming house at Greenville, S. C., where he kept it until told by Arthur Fowler to bring it back to Florence. His statement declares he turned it over to the lawyer and has not seen any of it since.

Officers say that only about $500 of the bank's money was recovered.

U. D. C. MEETING OPENS; 600 ATTEND

Charleston, S. C., November 15.—(AP)—Called to order by a navy band, 600 delegates to the national convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy opened their annual session today with addresses of welcome from representatives of state and city governments and numerous patriotic organizations.

The convention crowd, estimated as the largest of any U. D. C. meeting, was raised to its highest pitch of enthusiasm when the navy band played "Dixie."

Dr. Weaver's Address. The evening program was featured by the address of the Rev. Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, of Mercer university, and the greetings from Mayor Thomas P. Stoney and a representative of Governor Richards.

General J. C. Foster, of Houston, Texas, commander-in-chief of the Confederate veterans, and Sumner Lowry, of Tampa, Fla., commander of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, delivered greetings from their organizations, while those in behalf of the National Daughters of the American Revolution were extended by Vice President General Mrs. William B. Burney, of Columbia, S. C.

The invocation by Bishop William A. Guerry opened the meeting. A rousing welcome was given the president-elect, Mrs. S. A. Allison, of Charleston, who was honored by the South Carolina division with a silver coffee service presented at a luncheon today. Mrs. Allison assumed formal charge of the meeting after her introduction by Miss Mary B. Poppenheim, past president general.

Southern women and their organizations are the real force of the Confederacy which did not surrender at Appomattox, Dr. Weaver declared in his night address on "The Future of the Southern Confederacy."

"They were unconquerable," Dr. Weaver said. "They never laid down their arms, they took no oath of allegiance when the war was ended. The greater portion of them were never reconstructed. They lived and died true to the ideals of the south. The future of the southern Confederacy is to be realized, if at all, through you."

The speaker called upon southern women to make war upon illiteracy throughout the south and to fight against any forces standing in the way of industrial prosperity, agricultural welfare and educational and religious interests in the south.

"It is a humiliating fact that native-born white illiteracy in America is a southern problem," the speaker said. "Seventy-four per cent of the native-born white illiterates in America are southern and only 26 per cent are northern. Health conditions in the rural south are not what they ought to be. The standard of living today is higher than ever before, yet a large portion of our southern people because of ignorance and a lack of medical care, are wasted in body and suffer unnecessary physical pain."

Light Showers,
Lower Mercury
Seen for Today

Continued cloudy weather with possible misty rains today, followed during the afternoon and night by a moderate drop in temperature, was the way C. F. von Hermann, meteorologist, sized up the current weather outlook.

While some of the season's coldest weather is snapping at the middle west and has penetrated as far south as Knoxville, the heat deeply infused into Georgia soil by an unusually warm summer and fall is a strong factor against any sudden drop of local temperatures, Mr. von Hermann explained.

Meanwhile November slips away on an average temperature basis several points above normal. While minimum extremes at this time of year are normally to be expected to range between 21 and 27 degrees, the lowest drop of the mercury this year went only to 36 during the first week of November.

Due to the stabilizing effect of heavy clouds, the temperature extremes here Tuesday struck an unusually short range of six points between 23 and 29 degrees. These figures will be approximated today, the weather bureau predicts, with the possibility of rainfall bringing a decidedly downward trend late Wednesday night.

Fort Valley, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—Adoption of the baby bond plan for the paving of streets of this city was voted this week by city council.

It is believed that actual work on the paving will start within the next few weeks.

This action by council follows recent purchase of a tractor and large grader, for improving roads in the county; and construction of a handsome new school building and a modern jail.

A new $35,000 negro school building is now under construction, to be ready for occupancy by January 1. Much activity is also noticeable in the building of new residences.

Gid Tanner, Famous Georgia Fiddler, Wins New Laurels

NOTED MOUNTAINEER GIVEN "WRITE-UP" IN HOLLAND'S

Gid Tanner, the red-headed Gwinnett county fiddler who will be a star performer at the convention this week of the Georgia Old Time Fiddlers' association, has achieved new fame, after already having won national attention through his phonograph records and radio broadcasts. Gid has been "written up" in Holland's magazine.

In the December issue of this publication, Mrs. Catherine Stewart Prosser has a story, "The Legend of Mountain Folk Songs," devoted largely to the studies of Georgia and Tennessee mountain folk by Mrs. Ethel Park Richardson, who has spent many years among the people of the mountains and has succeeded in breaking through their habitual reserve.

In her study of the folk music of the mountains, Mrs. Richardson naturally went to the original source, the country fiddler who plays the same tunes his great-grandfather brought into the mountains from the coast when the rugged pioneers packed their few belongings and followed the western trail with Daniel Boone. These are the fiddlers who flock every fall to Atlanta for the convention of the Georgia Old Time Fiddlers' association, and fifty or more of them are expected to arrive Friday for the two-day gathering of the association at the auditorium.

Sung Gid's Song. In the article in Holland's, Mrs. Richardson is described as singing "Gid's Song," a mountain ditty which for years has been a favorite. She explained that she tried to sing it just as she heard Gid Tanner sing it, though she lacked the ability to sing tenor and bass with equal facility, as does the famous Mr. Tanner.

That part of the story relating to the fiddlers' convention is favorable; "Gid Tanner's fame has spread far beyond the confines of his little white-washed cabin, and he is now making records for a talking machine company. When he sings the old songs in a song he pitches it to a high, quavering falsetto which adds amusement."

Gid is really one of the funniest men the Lord ever made, but "dern peculiar" as his neighbors say. "Mrs. Richardson won Gid's friendship over a discussion of fiddle tunes, and then, to further cement the friendship, Gid proposed that he and Mrs. Richardson sing together, which they did, the former sawing away on the fiddle, eyes closed, feet tapping the floor."

A short time afterward Mrs. Richardson wrote to Gid that she wanted to come down with a friend to get a story about him. But Mrs. Tanner answered the letter.

"I don't want no magazine writ about Gid, so there ain't no use in your coming." And Mrs. Richardson bowed to the will of the fiddler.

Far beyond the limits of Georgia has spread the fame of the Georgia fiddlers since the big convention and championship contests in Atlanta, which attracted attention. The New York Times several years ago sent a special representative to the convention, and he devoted a part of his column to the unusual exhibition of old-fashioned music. Musical America, one of the leading musical journals, has described the Atlanta fiddlers' convention in several articles, with bits of the melodies played by the fiddlers as examples of pre-war folk songs, unadorned by modern influences.

Within an hour after supper next Friday morning the fiddlers and their admiring friends will begin to assemble at the Atlanta auditorium, although they are not scheduled to play until 8 o'clock that night. The opera house gives his voice a rest one day he is to sing, but the fiddler believes in exercise and practice. All day long in the lobby of the auditorium, in remote corners, in the alley if the day is warm, they fiddle for the fun of it. They fiddle singly and in groups. They learn tunes from one another, they teach one another new twists to such homely melodies as "Hell Broke Loose in Georgia," "The Devil Among the Yearlings" and "Old Mar" in the Canebrake. As noon grows high, they produce from a pocket a bit of corn pone and country ham, with perhaps a suffer of Georgia corn pone to wash it down. Atlanta hotels derive no revenue from these mountain visitors.

Always some young fiddler, influenced by the omnipresent phonograph or perhaps a radio set, attempts to please the assemblage with a waltz tune or fox trot, with a liberal jazz treatment. Always, too, he is frowned on, told to take his tunes elsewhere, and given a lecture on his falling from grace. For not even the conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra could look with more contempt upon jazz than do Professor Aleck Smart and his fellow fiddlers upon the profane melodies which have come out of New York's Tin Pan alley to compete with the tunes their granddads played.

But the good old tunes are passing away. Always, too, he is frowned on, told to take his tunes elsewhere, and given a lecture on his falling from grace. ## HENRY FORD SUED FOR $6,000,000

Pontiac, Mich., November 15.—(AP) Nearly 2,000 stockholders of the old Lincoln Motor company, scattered throughout the country, are plaintiffs in a suit in chancery against Henry Ford and Edsel Ford, involving approximately $6,000,000, filed in circuit court here today.

The suit, brought by Henry M. Leland and son, Wilfred C. Leland, former president and vice president, respectively, of the Lincoln Motor company, under power of attorney obtained from the stockholders, seeks reimbursement for losses alleged to have been suffered at the time Henry Ford purchased the Lincoln properties in 1922 at a receiver's sale for $2,000,000.

The bill of complaint charges that Ford failed to keep a verbal agreement to buy the outstanding stock of the active stockholders. This outstanding stock, according to the complaint, aggregated about $6,000,000 in value.

Charging that but for the agreement made verbally with Mr. Ford, they would have been able to effect a reorganization of the company or to have reestablished its business on a basis that would have assured the payment of the company's creditors and stockholders, the Lelands ask that the stock of the new Lincoln Motor company, now operated by the Ford interests, be decreed held in trust for the plaintiff stockholders.

The bill charges that after the new company had been established and met "with extraordinary success" with the Lelands in a series of questions, the Fords "took the same from the direction and control of the Lelands" and have since directed it and controlled it themselves.

"They came into possession of a going concern, the fair value of which was upward of $25,000,000," the complaint alleges.

The Lelands accuse Henry Ford of having "permitted it to be announced in various newspapers and magazines that he had voluntarily and as a matter of generosity paid the creditors in full." The plaintiffs state that filing of the suit was deferred because they believed it was the intention of the Fords to pay the stockholders, as agreed, and upon so doing, again to pretend "that said payment was an act of beneficence and generosity and not pursuant to their agreement."

OLYMPIC FUNDS
VOTED BY FRANCE

Paris, November 15.—(AP)—Favorable verdicts were given today by the French senate, and when the day was over, the senate had voted a subsidy of 2,000,000 francs, or about $800,000, insuring participation of France in the Olympics at Amsterdam in 1928.

Senator Joseph Faure, from Comore department, spoke, and in spite of his 60 years, looking the perfect type of retired athlete, stubbornly opposed the Olympic subsidy, while former Premier Herriot, now minister of education, retorted rather fat, championed the track, field and other athletic pursuits.

Senator Faure insisted that 500,000 francs was sufficient for the Olympic preparation of French athletes and that the other million and a half francs should be diverted to agriculture.

"Your athletes can achieve perfect training without cost to the country's treasury by spending a few months on French farms next spring," said the senator.

Senator Reynaud concurred with his colleague in a long speech, which was followed by Herriot in a short, but spirited oratorical speech which took the senator's breath away and brought applause and a large majority to his project in support of the larger subsidy.

NUNGESSER FUND
DIVISION ORDERED

New York, November 15.—(AP)—Immediate distribution of a 2,000,000 franc fund raised in this country for families of the French aviators, Nungesser and Coli, was directed today by Dudley Field Malone, head of the fund committee.

By cable to Theodore Rousseau, treasurer of the fund in Paris, Malone instructed that half the fund be given immediately to Mrs. Nungesser, the first mother, the other half to be distributed in equal parts to Coli's parents and six children.

An additional $30,000 raised in New York city but sent to France through channels other than the fund committee, now is described as "lost." Malone said, and its distribution will be delayed until members of the committee in Paris trace the money.

The 2,000,000 franc fund, he said, was deposited in a Paris bank and has drawn interest while the committee searched for the New York fund. The latter, it recently was stated by Paul Claudel, French ambassador to the United States, has been held by Premier Poincare, of France, pending a decision as to whether it was to be distributed between the mothers of the aviators or among Mrs. Nungesser and all members of Coli's family.

The Amazing Adventures
Of Anarchist Aber

By Lawrence Aber.

As Told to Ben Cooper, Staff Representative of The Constitution.

Copyright, 1927, by The Constitution.

CHAPTER VI.—GREASER VERSUS GRINGO.

SYNOPSIS.

In the first installment of his amazing and thrilling narrative, Aber traced his ancestry to the British peerage, and told of his birth in Wales. His story so far relates as follows: He was born in 1880 in Monmouthshire, Wales, and at an early age deserted from a British navy schoolship. He remained in the slums of New York for a time, and at the age of 18 enlisted with the American army in the Spanish war. After the Spanish war he went back home and after a brief stay with his mother enlisted with the British South African forces for the Boer war.

En route to Cape Town on a troopship, Aber and his fellow soldiers went through the tortures of privation and rough treatment. Landing in South Africa, they proceeded to Pretoria, and after a march that seemed like a long and fantastic nightmare, arrived at Ladysmith, where they entrenched for a long siege.

Gaunt with privation and suffering from scurvy, Aber comes through the grueling siege. Returning to London after his discharge, Aber faces poverty and is forced to beg and then to steal to ward off starvation.

He then shipped for Brazil aboard a sailing vessel that touched at Rio de Janeiro and rounded Cape Horn. Aber deserted his ship in the Tiji islands and joined up as first mate with a vessel trading among the New Guinea islands.

Aber turned up in Manila in 1903, and after a brief management of a sporting house, became involved in a shooting affair and escaped to Jolo, Sulu, where he professed Mohammedanism and became identified with the sultan, who sent him on a mission to the United States. Aber then married one of the sultan's daughters.

As a relative of the sultan and a hadji, or priest, Aber took command of native Moro troops and fought the American soldiers in the Philippines. A truce was arranged, Aber was given the job of vice governor of Bongao, and when the war-dust hit him again enlisted in the United States army, but deserted and returned to Sulu. The revolt broke out again, and, close pressed, Aber escaped and went to Europe where he fell in with radicals and became an anarchist. Later he enlisted in the Canadian army and went to the world war.

From 1914 to the conclusion of the world war, I jumped around between the battle fields of Europe, shipping on the Atlantic, and Mexico like a flea on a dog's back. Those were hey days for the soldier of fortune. In this chapter I will deal with my Mexican adventures, giving attention to the entire world war in later chapters.

In the early part of 1916 Pancho Villa broke loose in Mexico. The thirst for adventure and a desire to help the underdog led me to Villa and within a few days I was a major with his famous Flying squadron. The average peon of Mexico was favorable to Villa and tried to help him rule. We fought like men and within a month we controlled every province in northern Mexico. Though we were classed as bandits, I will defy anyone to ask a Mexican what he really thinks about it, for Villa was his only friend.

ORDERS DISREGARDED. FIRING SQUAD INVOKED. We gave certain men orders to leave and when they failed to heed them we invoked the firing squad. In spite of the fact that Villa's men robbed banks, railroad trains, etc., the poor people were not hurt. Our forces never numbered more than 4,000 men, but we whipped more than 60,000 federal troops to a standstill, fighting over a territory of some 2,000 square miles, never losing until the capitalistic crowd from the United States took a hand. On two occasions Villa placed me in charge of the firing squad to execute people, and for more than three months I never saw a bed. We fought and ran, lived off the country and I believe that we had the finest body of fighting men the world has ever seen. We killed more than 3,000 people, returned hundreds of farms to the peons, ran out the rotten priests, and cleared up Mexico in general.

Villa's troops had absolutely nothing to do with the Columbus, New Mexico, raid. We were far away when we heard of this incident, and I swear that none of us had any idea of how it happened. Soon after this we learned that the United States had ordered troops after us, and I crossed the line and enlisted in the First New Mexican infantry, as a Villa spy, going into New Mexico with Pershing. I soon saw that the whole thing was figured out in the states with a two-fold purpose.

The land owners in Mexico wanted Villa run out, and war department officials wanted a larger standing army. Now, I do not charge that your officials deliberately killed American soldiers at Columbus to gain their point, but I do say that certain rich men paid to have the raid called off, and that the war department was glad of an opportunity to raise the size of the army. While with the American troops who were chasing Villa, I was in constant communication with the men we were supposed to catch and all that Pershing accomplished was to train quite an army in this fashion.

While in the New Mexican infantry, I aided many Mexican prisoners to escape, using them as spies to carry notes to Villa and by being where I was kept them from being captured. Realizing the overwhelming odds with which they were faced Villa's army saw the uselessness of continuing operations, and disbanded, scattering far and wide over Mexico. Once again the name of Lawrence Aber appeared upon the desertion rolls and I went to New York.

I was still in communication with the Soviet Internationale and desired to aid in their cause. After Columbus I was more than willing. No attempt was made to find out the real truth of the Columbus raid and it revealed to me that officials intended to draw America into the war with Europe.

FLORIDA MEDICOS
REVOKE LICENSE
OF DR. C. C. FAIMAN

Winter Haven, Fla., November 15.—(AP)—Revocation of the medical license of Dr. C. C. Faiman, of Shepherd-McClintock trial fame, featured the closing day's sessions here today of the state board of medical examiners meeting.

Faiman, who had been located at Panama City, is said to have left the state and his whereabouts are at present unknown, officials said.

His license was revoked on the charge that he had obtained both license and diploma illegally. Faiman was said to have received his license and diploma from Dr. G. A. Munch, Tampa, who was found guilty in federal court some months ago of operating a diploma mill.

Faiman gained fame in connection with the trial of Shepherd in Chicago in the McClintock will case. Faiman, who conducted a school of science, was said to have furnished Shepherd with tubercular germs which the state charged caused the death of William McClintock, his wealthy foster son. Shepherd was acquitted and Faiman was said to have come to Florida shortly afterward.

DR. DINWIDDIE SUES
NEW YORK NEWSPAPER

New York, November 15.—(AP)—Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, predecessor of the late Wayne R. Wheeler as legislative superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, brought suit today for $250,000 against the New York American, charging libel.

The causes of action were given in the complaint as a front-page story charging Dr. Dinwiddie with mismanagement of $10,000 of United States money, and an editorial "reiterating and aggravating the original libel."

In the new story question the American said that the Anti-Saloon League was threatened with a government investigation concerning the alleged misuse of federal funds in 1919, and that the executive committee of the league, to avert this investigation, voted to repay the government and passed a resolution censuring Dr. Dinwiddie.

COMMERCE CHAMBER

Waycross, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—The Bacon County Chamber of Commerce this week held the second of its series of meetings with all the schools in the county. The consolidated school at Rockingham was host. Talks were made by Homer Causser, Rev. W. W. Hill and H. F. Thompson.

GASOLINE PRICE
PROBE IS ORDERED

Columbus, Ga., November 15.—(AP)—An investigation of gasoline prices in Columbus has been ordered by Judge C. Frank McLaughlin in his charge to the grand jury of the superior court of Muscogee county.

Judge McLaughlin called attention to the law against "forestalling, re-grading and engrossing," emphasizing the fact that an agreement among dealers not to sell a commodity under a certain price constitutes a misdemeanor. The judge said he had been informed that the law is being violated in Columbus.

"Columbus is the only place," he said, "where gasoline stands at one price."

He said that on a recent trip to Atlanta he had observed the varying prices of gasoline en route. "It is a fact," he said, "that Columbus is paying more for gasoline than any other city in Georgia."

"If you find," he urged, "that an agreement to fix the price of gasoline is being made here, it is a misdemeanor and it is your duty to return an indictment."

CAFE MAN LOSES
SUIT FOR $50,000
AGAINST STUTZ

Indianapolis, Ind., November 15.—(AP)—A federal court jury hearing the suit of Herbert J. Miller, former cafe proprietor, for $50,000 damages from Harry C. Stutz, former auto manufacturer, returned a decision in favor of the defendant here today. The suit was based on the charge that Stutz had alienated the affections of Miller's wife.

The Millers were divorced in March, 1924, and Stutz married Mrs. Miller a few months later. Miller declared that the former automobile manufacturer started paying attentions to his wife in 1923, which eventually resulted in her divorcing him. Mrs. Stutz testified her former husband had killed her love for him by his profanity and inability to support her.

Mr. and Mrs. Stutz live in Orlando, Florida.

CIGAR SMOKING
MARATHON ENDS
WITH THIRTIETH

Baltimore, November 15.—(AP)—The experiment to test the effects of continuous tobacco smoking on the human body, which was begun at 10 a. m. today by students of the University of Maryland medical school, ended abruptly at about 6:15 o'clock tonight when Vincent Maddi finished smoking his 30th consecutive cigar. He had hoped to smoke 50 in 12 hours. Neither the students, John Mac, Jr., and Mark Rosen, who had observed the experiment from the beginning, nor a reporter could determine cause for the abrupt ending. Either the 31st cigar was too big or else, they said, Maddi feared his sudden flare into publicity would attract attention of the dean. From all outward appearances his smoking marathon caused him no bad effects.

DOG TRACK OFFICIALS PLAN SPRING MEETING

Because of the postponement of a hearing in litigation over the legality of the "donation certificate" plan used in making purses for greyhound races at the Dixie Lakes Kennel club at Union City, Ga., about 300 racing dogs have been shipped to tracks in Florida and Louisiana, it was announced Tuesday.

Hearing of a petition for a permanent injunction restraining the club from using this system of purses was scheduled for Tuesday, but by agreement of counsel on both sides the case was postponed until the February term of the Campbell superior court.

The backers of the Dixie Lakes Kennel club spent about $100,000 on the plant at Union City. They had planned a fall meet and a spring meet, but the fall meet has been abandoned in the face of court proceedings. The litigation will be settled in time to determine whether or not the club will carry out its plan to stage a spring meet.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

GEN. SHERIDAN AND GEN. EARLY

LATE IN JULY, 1864, GRANT SENT GEN. "PHIL" SHERIDAN WITH 45,000 MEN TO DRIVE THE CONFEDERATE ARMY OF JUBAL EARLY FROM THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY. SHERIDAN LEARNED THAT EARLY WAS BEING REINFORCED FROM LEE'S ARMY, AND FELL BACK TO THE POTOMAC. BUT LEE, NEEDING MEN AT PETERSBURG, WITHDREW THE TROOPS HE HAD SENT EARLY, AND SHERIDAN AT ONCE TOOK THE OFFENSIVE.

SHERIDAN, NOW OUTNUMBERING HIS OPPONENT, ADVANCED DETERMINEDLY. ON SEPT. 19TH, 1864, HE DEFEATED EARLY AT WINCHESTER, AND AGAIN ON SEPT. 22ND AT FISHER'S HILL, BOTH SIDES LOSING HEAVILY. EARLY RETREATED SOUTHWARD UP THE VALLEY.

Sheridan in the Shenandoah.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

SHERIDAN THEN PROCEEDED TO LAY WASTE THE RICH VALLEY, SO THAT IT COULD NEVER AGAIN BE USED BY THE ENEMY AS A LINE OF ATTACK AGAINST WASHINGTON. THE CONFEDERATES STRIPPED THE REGION SO THOROUGHLY THAT SHERIDAN SAID, IF A CROW WANTED TO FLY ACROSS THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY, HE WOULD HAVE TO CARRY HIS PROVISIONS WITH HIM.

THE SOUTH CALLED FOR REVENGE, AND EARLY, WITH SUPPORTS FROM LEE'S ARMY, AGAIN TOOK THE FIELD. ON OCT. 19TH, AT DAYBREAK, WHILE SHERIDAN WAS ABSENT, THE CONFEDERATES SURPRISED THE FEDERALS AT CEDAR CREEK. SOME OF THE UNION TROOPS FLED IN DISORDER. THE 6TH CORPS RESISTED BRAVELY, BUT WAS FORCED TO FALL BACK BEFORE EARLY'S FURIOUS CHARGES.

I Have Said in My Heart

BY IDAH M'GLONE GIBSON.
HOUSEWIVES

I sometimes think that the greatest failure that woman has made in all the years of her progress is in the running of her home. She has made great success in other branches of business, but in the one great business, in which just because she is born a woman she is supposed to be proficient she fails. With all her interest in domestic science and other home-keeping theories very few women keep their homes as do men their offices.

Not one household in a hundred is run on business principles. Accounts are not kept, nor any thought given to doing the mechanical work efficiently—rather the average woman seems to try and get along with spending all she is given in a kind of hit or miss fashion with the sure knowledge that she will not have to give account of it to someone as does a man in his business.

That, perhaps, is the reason why housework is considered almost the lowest class of work in which a woman may engage. I have known very few girls or women who contracted to "do" housework that lived up to her contract. Housework should be just as honorable an occupation as nursing, and it is not nearly as hard.

Surely keeping a home clean and free from germs and the preparation of good food should carry with it just as much dignity as the caring for some poor body after germs or bad food had made one ill.

I have almost come to the conclusion that men could do better work as housewives than women. At least, they would run it on business principles.

You go into places like ships or hotels or restaurants that are run by men, and you see none of the disorder and disintegration that you can find in the homes of even the well-to-do, where a woman is chief executive.

Just how a woman whose income only allows her the help of one person, how she should arrange her work so that the wheels shall turn noiselessly!

There certainly should be found a way that this could be done. A man would solve this problem right off the bat. Many people will say that the very fact that the one maid or helper does not eat her meals with the family works against labor saving.

This seems to me to be silly, and if I were a maid I would feel as though my dignity was not at all lost by having to wait on the table while the family ate. In fact, it would seem as though I would understand that as this was about the only time the family could all be together that of course they would want to be alone. I would know that waiting on table so that the mistress of the house or no one else would be jumping up and making things uncomfortable was perhaps the one most important part of my duty.

I believe, however, that as the house where a girl works is in reality her home, that she should have some place where she could receive company.

Of course, all this is obviated if a girl comes in for so many hours a day and then leaves. This seems to me to be about the easiest solution. If a woman is paid by the hour, then she should give good measure of work for that hour, and the time which she takes for her dawdled over luncheon must be taken out, as is the hour that is given to a man for his mid-day meal.

Memo: The very slipshod manner in which the woman of the head of the household rules her employees shows conclusively women have really made a failure of the efficient administration of the home.

DIET AND HEALTH

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.
Duodenal and Stomach Ulcers.
Q.—Yes, duodenal and stomach ulcers are curable by adequate medical treatment (which means largely adequate dietetic treatment). The treatment consists first of all of frequent feedings. I will give you some diet right now from an article by Dr. Vanderhoff in the A. M. A. Journal.
1. The ideal food, as outlined by Shippo, and used by a great many physicians, is two ounces each of cream and sweet milk, to which is added 10 grains of sodium citrate. This is given once every four hours from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m. In the average instance of chronic duodenal ulcer, however, six feedings a day suffice, and the patient is instructed never to go more than three hours, while awake, without putting food into the stomach. The food between meals and at bedtime may consist of a glass of sweet milk or a milkshake with egg. When this is not convenient, a good substitute is cream cheese with crackers and butter.

2. Diet—Except for the acute cases and those in which there is hemorrhage, the patient is given a liberal diet, and it should be explained to the individual with a chronic duodenal ulcer that he does not have "indigestion" but rather, too much digestion. These patients are told to eat a general diet with the exception of seven types of food, which are to be avoided: (1) all acids, such as vinegar, pickles and sour foods; (2) raw fruits, especially apples, grapes and citrus fruits; (3) soups and meat extracts; (4) condiments and spices, such as an excess of salt, onion, pepper, mustard and horseradish; (5) intense sweets, such as toffee, molasses and candy; (6) very coarse foods, such as nuts and corn; and (7) alcohol in any form, but especially raw wines, cider and grape juice. The best food for patients with ulcers is fat, such as cream, butter and olive oil, and the best food for ulcers in some form, and they are told to partake freely of milk, eggs and all kinds of cooked meat.

The next parts of the treatment relate to the medication. For that you must see a physician.

3. Duration of Treatment. "The treatment must be carried out regularly and persistently over a period of two years. If omitted for one or two days, it is conceivable that the healing of the ulcer may be delayed a few days or even a week."

Other Treatments: This consists of the attempt to correct any other physical impairment, especially tonsil, sinusitis and teeth. Subsequent Care: "At the expiration of two years, all medication is discontinued. The patient is told he may eat what he wishes, except that he should avoid acids, intense sweets and excess condiments, and especially ether, grape juice and sour wines. It is also advisable that a patient with a healed duodenal ulcer should not go too long without food, and many patients continue to eat between meals and at bedtime, although not with the exact regularity required during the period of treatment."

Don't have ulcer! It can be prevented by proper diet and proper hygiene otherwise, I do you want our article on balanced diets? Send in a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Varied Program Arranged For 'Young America' Girls

Sixteen beautiful girls—with Miss Benah Leavens, Atlanta girl, acting as hostess—of the Public Unit, "Young America," which is playing all this week at the Howard theater, Tuesday were given a sight-seeing tour to the Confederate memorial at Stone Mountain as the first item on an elaborate program which will include visits to all the points of interest in the city, culminating in a dance Thursday night at the Ansley hotel.

Miss Leavens was selected several months ago in a contest sponsored by The Constitution, to represent Atlanta in the "Young America" unit, and girls were likewise selected from 15 other cities of the nation. This is the last city on the tour and plans are to make the visit to Atlanta of the girls a memorable one.

The Howard theater, in conjunction with the junior chamber of commerce and the Ansley hotel, is arranging the program for the girls and Miss Leavens will act as official hostess. The program for today includes a national comedy sketches the city has seen on a vaudeville stage, George O'Brien in "The Unknown," "The West Side" on the screen all this week.

Headed by Herb Williams, veteran comedian, in his festival of fun entitled "From Soup to Nuts," the vaudeville bill at Loew's Grand features this week a line of the greatest hits ever sent out on the circuit. Other acts on the bill are the Red Carnation, a pretentious revue; Neil the Acrobat and his "Backward and Dodge," "Two Nuts in a Garage," and the Four Harlots. "The Garden of Allah," with Alice Terry and Ivan Petrovich as stars, is featured on the screen.

Howard.

The week's program at the Howard theater is one that has proven very popular to the theater-going populace of Atlanta. The headline attraction is "Young America," a fast moving stage show that is said to go over with a bang. It consists of all the winners of the Public National Opportunity contest, among whom is Benah Leavens, The Constitution-Howard winner. Miss Leavens gives a fine exhibition of her singing and dancing, and the picture is a real performer. The picture attraction is "She's a Sheik."

Forsyth.

"Sinner," which is being presented this week at the Forsyth theater, is the most talked-of play to ever be seen in Atlanta. Featuring Miss Leavens, a singing and dancing star, and Walter Regan, talented leading man, "Sinner" tells the story of marriage of a "free soul" tied by the shackles of matrimony and the resulting complications. Local patrons who appreciate the most intelligent form of drama are particularly urged to see "Sinner."

Rialto.

Jack Holt and Dorothy Revier are the stars in "The Tigress," which closes at the Rialto theater tonight. The screen record of the Georgia Tech-L. S. U. football game which gave some dozen thousands many thrills at Grant field Saturday has been presented in the current release of the Paramount picture. Every play is very clear and many interesting points of the game are clearly shown.

The comedy with "The Tigress" is a Billy Adams effort entitled "Meet the Folks." It is an educational. Thursday, the Rialto will present the screen version of the story told by the famous novel by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, "The Wreck of the Hesperus."

"The Wreck of the Hesperus" has an all-star cast, which contains the names of Alan Hale, Virginia Bruce and Frank Marion. The picture contains some of the most thrilling dramatic scenes especially those of the storm and the actual wreck of the old ship.

Ponce de Leon.

Florence Vidor, regal and handsome beauty of the screen, is featured in "The World at Her Feet," her latest release which is playing for today only at the Ponce de Leon theater. In "The World at Her Feet," Miss Vidor has a film which displays her talents to decided advantage. It concerns the adventures of a girl, who, burdened with the care of her brother's children, has to keep an unruly figure in his place at the same time. It is delightful and entertaining comedy.

West End.

"The Flying Horseman" featuring Tom O'Brien and Dorothy Revier, two of the younger and more popular stars of the screen, is playing for today only at the West End theater. Patrons of this popular community theater today will find this picture one of the best that has been shown in a local theater in several months.

Palace.

The Palace theater, out in Inman Park, will have for one day only "The World at Her Feet," which is a picture of the same title as the one shown at the Ponce de Leon. A thrilling, vital, crowded with action, this is another of Manager Taylor's efforts to give the people the neighborhood some of the real films of the year.

Tenth Street.

Paramount's sensational new male star, George O'Brien, is featured in "Nevada," which is playing for today only at the Tenth Street theater. "Nevada" is the ideal type of west-

Atlanta's Airport

By Ben Cooper

Two local aviators have been engaged as air mail pilots on the Atlanta-Richmond leg of the New York-Atlanta air mail route, which will open March 1. James G. Ray, operations manager of the Pittsfield Aviation company, of Philadelphia, announced Tuesday.

The local pilots who will fly the Mailplane Pitrain planes on the Atlanta-Richmond route are Johnny Kyle, now piloting for Doug Davis, and Gene Brown, of Decatur. The third air mail pilot operating from the Atlanta hangar, of the Pittsfield company, will be W. J. Shaffer, of New Jersey, who is also chief instructor of the local hangar.

New Pilot Arrives.

Steering Smith, of Philadelphia, has been assigned to the local hangar as a commercial pilot, while E. B. Raringer and J. J. Hand, also of Philadelphia, are mechanics and student pilots. M. P. Hanson, of Boston, is chief mechanic and service manager, while J. H. Finkbeiner, former Atlanta boy, who returned recently, is operations manager here.

Mr. Ray left Tuesday night for Spartanburg, S. C., after spending several days at Candler field to supervise the opening of the Pittsfield operations here, and will go on to Philadelphia after a day at the Spartanburg hangar. He will return to Atlanta within the next ten days or two weeks.

Prayer Service.

"Things of scripture you want to know" will be the subject of Rev. E. R. Carswell's talk tonight at the regular midweek prayer service at the Gospel tabernacle on Capitol avenue.

That arouse the emotions as do few more serious plays.

Tudor.

A drama of love, hate and romance is told at the Tudor in a most stirring and powerful manner in the production of James Oliver Curwood's famous novel, "Nomads of the North," which is being shown there. In addition to a powerful and thrilling story, the picture has Len Chaney, Lewis Stone, Francis McDonald and other prominent players in its cast.

tea
comes from India

LACK, fermented India Tea is, without doubt, the most stimulating and refreshing drink in the world. It's the fermentation that gives the kick! No tea that is not fermented can have the same wonderful stimulating properties as India Tea.

If you drink tea, be sure you drink India Tea or a blend containing India Tea. If you have not yet tasted tea, try a cup of India Tea. We know that one cup will convince you of its refreshing and stimulating qualities.

The people of Great Britain drink on the average 6 cups of India Tea or a blend containing India Tea a day to one cup of any other kind. They have been tea drinkers all their lives, and experience has taught them which is the best tea.

How to make
of Tea

Use India Tea or a blend containing India Tea, and make it in the correct way. Use an earthenware teapot, previously warmed. Put into it one teaspoonful of India Tea for each person. Be sure the water is poured into the teapot the moment it boils. Allow to stand for 5 minutes to infuse. Put a little milk or cream into each cup before serving the tea. It greatly improves the flavour. Then add sugar to taste. India Tea also makes the best Iced Tea.

Introduce your friends and your guests to
Afternoon Tea. But be sure—in order to get the best results—to use

North Georgia Methodists Will Open 61st Conference Here, Nov. 23; 700 Expected

Sessions, Which Will Last Five Days, Will Be Held at Wesley Memorial Church.

100 DELEGATES HERE FOR GAS SALES MEET

The sixty-first session of the North Georgia conference, Methodist Episcopal church, south, will open in Atlanta Wednesday, November 23, at the Wesley Memorial church, it was announced Monday. More than 700 ministers and lay leaders are expected to attend.

The conference session will last five days, closing with the reading of appointments at Monday's session, November 28. During the annual meeting reports of various church interests in the section embraced by the North Georgia conference will be made by pastors, presiding elders and board church members.

Bishop W. B. Beauchamp, president of the conference, will preside. Dr. Marvin Williams, pastor of Wesley Memorial, is clerical host. Dr. Harvey M. Cox, president of Emory university, is lay leader.

Atlanta, which is probably the outstanding stronghold of Southern Methodism in the entire connection, has been host to the North Georgia conference on 14 previous occasions, and the approaching session is the sixth consecutive time the body has met in this city.

The North Georgia conference is one of the largest in membership and one of the strongest in leadership in the church. The membership includes more than 300,000 members and approximately 175 lay delegates, including official visitors and others the attendance at the approaching session will probably exceed 700.

Conference Officers. In addition to Bishop Beauchamp, the conference officers are: Rev. George W. Barrett, of Windsor, secretary; Rev. O. E. Smith, of Canton, assistant secretary; Rev. H. C. Emory, of Marietta, editor of conference minutes; M. S. Williams, of Tate, president of legal conference; and A. Munnip, of Atlanta, conference treasurer.

The body will receive as official visitors representatives of church-wide interests whose headquarters are located as follows: Dr. J. H. H. Lamar and B. A. Whitmore, Nashville; Christian Advocate, Dr. A. F. Smith, editor; board of missions, Dr. W. G. Crum, general secretary, Nashville; board of trustees, Dr. L. E. Todd, general secretary, St. Louis; board of lay activities, G. L. Morelock, general secretary, Nashville; hospital board, Dr. C. J. Jarrell, general secretary, Atlanta; board of education, Dr. Stenwald Anderson, general secretary, Nashville; Sunday school board, Dr. J. W. Shackford, general secretary, Nashville; Epworth League board, Dr. F. S. Parker, general secretary, Nashville; board of church extension, Dr. T. D. Ellis, general secretary, Louisville.

Among the distinguished visitors who will attend the conference is Dr. Wardle Stafford, of the British Wesleyan church. Dr. Stafford comes to the invitation of Bishop Beauchamp to deliver a series of sermons. He will preach each afternoon during the conference session.

Meeting Opens Nov. 23. The conference will hold its first business session at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, November 23. On Tuesday preceding the opening, Bishop Beauchamp will be in executive session with the twelve presiding elders who compose his cabinet. The presiding elders sustain an advisory relation to the bishop. They are:

W. S. Robinson, Athens district; W. L. Pierce, North Atlanta district; W. T. Hunslett, South Atlanta district; J. E. Ellis, Augusta district; Frank Quillian, Dalton district; H. L. Edmondson, Elberton district; J. G. Logan, Gainesville district; L. M. Twigg, Griffin district; W. H. LaPrade, Jr., La Grange district; H. H. Jones, Marietta district; E. F. Emory, Oxford district; J. P. Dwyer, Rome district.

The North Georgia conference represents a constituency of approximately 155,000 church members. There are 1,419 Sunday schools with 7,097 officers and teachers and 97,000 students enrolled; 336 Epworth leagues with a membership of 12,231 and 480 women's missionary societies with 28,600 members.

In spite of the fact the North Georgia conference is such a large body, it is not believed the approaching session will witness many changes in pastorate appointments.

There will be changes in two presiding elderships it is certain, since two terms expire by the constitution law of limitation. The Rev. W. S. Robinson, presiding elder of the Athens district, and the Rev. W. T. Hunslett, presiding elder of the South Atlanta district, have each served their respective districts for four consecutive years and will be appointed to other work.

4-Year Limit Observed. The four-year limit of continuous service which is binding upon the presiding eldership was removed from the pastorate by general conference legislation in 1922. It is, however,

One hundred representatives of the gas industry in the ten southeastern states inspected hotel, restaurant and industrial gas installations in Atlanta Tuesday afternoon as part of the program of the first southern regional gas sales conference, which is being held at the Biltmore hotel.

At the Biltmore Tuesday night delegates were guests at a dinner at which M. L. Kane, manager of the gas department of the Georgia Power company, and chairman of the southern regional gas sales council, presided. Informal talks were made by several of the delegates. P. S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power company, and president of the Southern Gas association, was scheduled to make the principal speech at the dinner but was unexpectedly called to New York.

The conference opened Tuesday morning with an address of welcome by W. E. Mitchell, vice president and general manager of the Georgia Power company. Mr. Kane made a short talk. The chief address of the morning session was on "National Developments in Sales Promotion" by G. M. Karsner, of New York, vice chairman of the commercial section of the American Gas association. I. H. Morehead, of the Georgia Power company, discussed "Campaigning Domestic Appliances," and Miss Cephalie Lewis, of the Federal Utilities, Inc. of Chicago, spoke on "Home Service."

Sponsored by Associations. The conference is sponsored by the commercial and industrial sections of the American Gas association and the Southern Gas association. The delegates represent 127 companies supplying gas service to cities in Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida. Such conferences have become established institutions in other sections of the country and have been found to be of great benefit to men engaged in the sale of gas appliances. This is the first in the south but it is expected that such good results will follow that similar conferences will be held yearly in the future.

The session this morning will be devoted to discussion of a questionnaire on domestic gas. J. P. Connolly, of Charleston, S. C., will preside. William F. Eve, Jr., of the Gas Light company in Augusta, will discuss the questionnaire. E. P. Bailey, of Cleveland, will speak on "House Heating." L. I. Baker, of Louisville, on "Water Heating," and A. E. Higgins, of New York, on "The Blue Star Plan Today."

The conference will conclude this afternoon.

Diamond Cutting Operation Shown By Jewelry House

The old saying "diamond cuts diamond" is being illustrated for the benefit of Atlanta shoppers through this week, but the actual operation is proving far different to the popular conception of the operation.

Theodore De Graeve, of Antwerp, Belgium, an expert diamond cutter and the son of a famous diamond cutter, is in charge of the operation. He is assisted by a number of local arrangements, assisted by C. H. Dudley, of the Phoenix Planning mills here. Representatives from ten southern states are expected.

A. S. Parker, of High Point, N. C., head of the southern organization, will preside at the meetings.

MAYOR, PASTOR WILL ADDRESS MASONIC CLUB

Members of the Atlanta Masonic club at 12:30 o'clock today will be guests of the Atlanta Lodge of Elks, at the Elks' home, 736 Peachtree street.

Mayor L. N. Ragsdale and the Rev. W. W. Menninger are scheduled to deliver brief addresses. Tut Brooks is in charge of the program, which has been especially arranged for the occasion.

GOOD SHOES

Mr. De Graeve cuts and polishes diamonds with diamond dust coating a smooth iron wheel that revolves at the rate of 3,000 revolutions per minute. This wheel is surfaced with diamond dust and oil, the only combination which will polish stones.

The crude diamonds, extracted in the past almost exclusively from the blue clay mines of South Africa, first are cut into desired sizes and embedded in the tip of a conical-shaped lump of a soft metal. The stones—four at a time—are fastened to steel arms and laid on the revolving wheel—and the cutting of the first facet is in progress.

The perfectly cut American diamond has 58 facets, which run to a plane in the center of the front part of the diamond, and end in a point at the rear of the stone. Each facet is automatically accurate as to angle, and while the operation may sound simple, Mr. De Graeve explains that it is so involved that 15 years of constant practice is necessary for the average man to learn the art.

"The true secret of diamond-cutting," he added, "lies in knowledge of the crystal formation of the stones and the grain of the grain. A diamond, unlike other precious stones, may have many different grains, and each facet must be cut with the grain. That calls for real skill and a deep knowledge of mineralogy."

According to Mr. De Graeve, 35 per cent of the world's diamonds and America is consuming half of the foreign output. American-cut stones, he added, are the most perfect in the world, 60 per cent of the rough stones weight being lost in the week's cutting necessary for the average one-carat diamond.

HEAD OF STATE'S HIGH SCHOOLS CIVITAN SPEAKER

Edward Aldine Pound, state supervisor of high schools, was principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Civitan club, Tuesday, at the Atlanta Athletic club. Mr. Pound talked on the development of high schools and outlined the history of the Georgia system.

An entertainment feature of the program was provided by members of the Forsyth Stock company, including Walter Ragan, leading man; Miss Aileen Meehan, ingenue; Warren Duff, manager, and Ainsworth Arnold, director.

A nominating committee to arrange for the election of officers in two weeks was named from past presidents of Civitan. Members of the committee are Herbert Porter, chairman; Julian V. Boehm, and Harry Root. Next week the Civitan club will be the guest of the Atlanta Elks' club, 12:30 o'clock Tuesday, at the Elks' new home on Peachtree street. President B. Graham West presided at the meeting.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Kadetes.

Forced to stroll beyond the frontier of his native land, Louis Daudet has discovered the delights of Amsterdam and the Dutch cities.

The present dry law must be enforced, or it may be made enforceable.

THANKSGIVING TIME.

Thanksgiving day, which is approaching, will have a new significance to Atlanta.

After so long a time one of the most important features of the construction program provided for in the bond issue of two years ago will be fully under way by that time.

The work of lowering the tracks in the Union depot yard will soon begin.

This is preliminary to the actual construction of the Pryor street and Central avenue viaducts which will tie together the north and south sides, thus unify the city, standardize values, increase the trading area, and reduce traffic congestion by reason of the two new cross-city arteries.

Soon hundreds of men who have been waiting to go on to these jobs will be employed, more money will go into the channels of trade, more houses and apartments now vacant will be occupied, and there will be shortly the dawn of Atlanta's greatest era of prosperity.

In Georgia there is unprecedented farm prosperity. Smokehouses and barns are full—or fuller, on the whole, than at any former Thanksgiving season in several years.

Cotton is more of a surplus than heretofore. Georgia's yield has been heavy, but, with the statistical position good, prices are such as to give the farmers actual profits on their year's operations.

The deposits in Georgia banks reflect the state's prosperity more accurately than at any fall season in several years.

It will be thanksgiving in the fullest sense, for the people of this city and state, as a whole, have more than usual to be thankful for.

A QUICK RESPONSE.

Although the campaign has not formally started Atlantans have already begun to voluntarily respond to the challenge of Thomas J. Lupton, of Chattanooga, to match his latest contribution of $250,000 for Oglethorpe university.

The campaign committee has not yet been organized, and it will not be announced until the luncheon is held at the Wincoff hotel at 12:30 o'clock Friday.

And yet, following the Sunday announcement of the Lupton donation and challenge, more than $33,000 was voluntarily contributed by Atlanta people in less than 48 hours, illustrating the great interest in Oglethorpe's development, and the enthusiastic spirit of Atlanta citizens to match so generous a gift from a citizen of another city and state.

Mr. Lupton had already given Oglethorpe university $400,000, and the latest gift will bring his magnificent benefaction to $650,000.

The match fund will of course be promptly and enthusiastically subscribed, and the campaign, when begun, should be successfully concluded within a few days.

AN IMPORTANT CAMPAIGN.

The American Forestry association, with headquarters in Washington, has offered Georgia a fund of $10,000 a year for three years, to be expended in educating the people of the state in preserving the forests, conserving timber, preventing forest fires, and protecting forest lands against floods and erosion.

This donation—which is liberal and commendable, and based on the great progress this state has made in a definite forestry program—is contingent upon Georgia raising a similar sum.

The Georgia Forestry association, therefore, is now engaged in enlisting subscriptions to match the gift.

Atlanta's quota has been fixed at only $3,500, of which a considerable sum has been subscribed without an active campaign. Every county has been given a quota.

It is a most important work, and one which vitally interests every citizen for timber conservation is an economic matter that has to deal directly with the growing generation, and the generations yet unborn.

We are glad that the president is only going as far as Cuba. If he went to the Canal Zone, he might start another landslide.

The oil lease riot is broken and the participants are trying to square themselves.

There is a riot in Georgia—a riot of colors in the woodlands and meadows.

We need a Burbank to make the century plant edible and then one can live to be 100 years old.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

MIND THE BABY'S APPETITE.

Hunger is a painful sensation due to lack of food, according to Webster.

Appetite is a desire for gratification. Fasting is abstaining from food.

Starvation is deprivation. A lot of us doctors who write do not understand the difference between these things.

Webster makes between these things at least, too many of us speak of starvation when we mean fasting or hunger.

When we mean appetite, we mean hunger.

Hunger, as the physiologist, Carlson, has demonstrated, is due to contractions of the empty stomach—contractions of hunger.

Appetite is a pleasant memory of sensations or feelings, tastes, colors, odors, of the food itself or of the pleasures associated with eating.

Appetite is the first few months of life is swayed by the price of the food swallowed.

Appetite continues to urge one to eat long after hunger has been relieved.

Scientifically and sensibly recognizing these differences between hunger and appetite, Dr. Charles A. Aldrich, of New York, has written a book on "Anorexia" (lack of appetite).

When their infants are only 2 or 3 months old and emphatically instructs the mother to feed the child.

He says that the mother should not accept under express orders, Dr. Aldrich says "think always of the child's digestion of food."

That will seem strange to parents who think it wise to compel young children to eat when the stomachs have no appetite.

Yet it is not only serious, but very effective treatment, Dr. Aldrich teaches that anorexia or imperfect digestion is usually the first symptom of infection and it precedes all other signs of the common cold.

Therefore, when a baby first refuses its bottle, mother should reduce the feedings and look out for an illness.

Dr. Aldrich considers the most important part of prophylaxis the mother does not consider it necessary to explain, doubtless, the ground that "everybody knows what a common cold is."

From the context of the respiratory tract—let's call it.

Instead of reducing the diet of the baby when the baby refuses food, many mothers begin to force the child to eat, and from this unpleasant struggle at a time when the baby is physically not fit to eat, aversion to food is born in the child's mind.

Thereafter the child associates unpleasantness with food—and if you put the child again the definition of anorexia is complete.

Now if the baby were left alone with appetite at such times, and not forced to take food, he doesn't want it, a few days he would grow hungry and soon make up for lost time.

Even for the older children—running on this policy is to have a child who is a policy and I commend it to the parents who are forever forcing unwanted food on unhappy kids.

Bulldogs To Send Full Strength Against Mercer Eleven

Mercer Faces Georgia Squad Minus Star

Way Is Spaved For Indian Club Deal
Losers Sent to Hospital Following Game Last Week With Petrels.

BY GEORGE CLARK.

When the Mercer special leaves early Saturday morning it will leave behind a loser who is out for the rest of the season.

This fact became known today as the Bears left the campus for Centennial stadium for a hard practice preparing for the Saturday game.

Losers were injured in the game with Georgia last week and are now in a local hospital. When the Bears go on against the powerful Georgia eleven they will miss Loser, the star who has so ably generated Mercer this year and last.

Seeks Another Star.

In practice this afternoon Coach Moore attempted to replace Loser. He partly succeeded when "Six" Salter, plunging backfield star of last year, showed up unusually well.

Moore plans to have Art Wright, a versatile half, Salter play one of the half-back positions, with Phoebe Smith at the other, and Bill Alderman at full.

This in all probability will be Mercer's opening backfield lineup.

Today's workout consisted mainly of dummy tackling, with the varsity later attempting to down Georgia players carefully executed by the freshman team. For a time the Bears worked the varsity at bay, but as the workout progressed the varsity began leading through them, and when the last signal was called it was Smith, Alderman, and All merrily routing the first year men.

Tomorrow will see harder work, was announced, and Thursday, with the big game only eleven days away, the Bears will enter their last hard grind of the week.

The Mercer special will leave early Saturday morning, arriving in the classic city around noon.

Yale Scores Only Once on Harvard's Field in 19 Years

New York, November 15.—(AP.) A tradition that hangs over the "first white line" in the Harvard stadium—a goal that Yale has crossed but once in 19 years—seemed today as the eleven settled into yesterday's stride for the 46th meeting Saturday.

Riding on the crest of a victory wave that swept over Army, Dartmouth and Princeton, Yale will be taken straight for eastern supremacy.

Harvard can place on the field only eleven battered warriors who have suffered three defeats this season. But other great Yale eleven have gone to the banks of the Charles as favored as the one and have returned.

Never leaving any further evidence of the "black magic" superstition hovering about the home goal.

In 19 years Yale has scored but one touchdown over Harvard in the stadium. That score came in 1923 when Duke Pond paddled his way on a field almost lost in a driving rain and ankle-deep mud.

In 1925, when Yale last played in the stadium, the team of Johnny Joss, almost as general a favorite as Yale is today, ran into a stone wall defense that gained a "moral victory" in a scoreless tie.

'TATTLE OF THE CENTURY' OPENS TODAY AT NEWARK

WITNESSES WILL TELL THE TRUTH, IF POSSIBLE

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

(By Special Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)
New York, November 15.—The great Dempsey-Kearns trial, known to the uplift profession as the tattle of the century, began today at Newark, N. J., in the United States district court at Newark, barring a settlement or further postponement, instead of going forward Tuesday, at Trenton, the date and place originally set.

The members of the profession in Newark have been liberally served with subpoenas and there is great consternation because many of the boxes have a primitive idea that the paths of justice lead but to the rock pile. That is, a great many members of the profession have been in court from time to time, but only as defendants and their entire experience leads them to believe that the innocent summons to appear and tell the truth, if possible, is the same thing as a warrant of arrest, which is not necessarily so in all cases.

Mr. One-Eyed Connally, when last seen, expressed the sentiments of the profession in general, when he stated that he never had had any luck in a courtroom, and added that they would take him there only over his dead body.

Very Disgusting.
"It disgusts me very much," Mr. Connally said, "to see a couple of clean-living, impulsive boys threatening to tell the truth about each other the way Mr. Kearns and Mr. Dempsey are, because they go along beautifully together for years and make a great deal of money, and then, after resorting to the truth, I hope something intervenes to swerve the boys from their rash intentions because if you get a couple of inexperienced men telling the truth about each other, it will sound so strange that nobody will believe them and the government is likely to drop the latch on both of them for fear testimony."

The possibility of an epidemic of truth in the uplift profession is quite disturbing in view of certain laboring men who are working out their Single-Tooth Yeager, the noted laborer, publicist, and explained in a scientific paper circulated among the profession today.

"I have discovered," Dr. Yeager announced, "that a general outbreak of this evil in the prize fight profession would be ruinous, not only to the uplift profession, but to the profession, but to business, as well."

"For instance, let us take the most elementary case. We will suppose a clean-living, impulsive couple of boys matched for a 15-round boxing contest, and we will further suppose that one is Pierre Piquette, the heavyweight champion of Belgium."

The other is just some bum from one of the stimulant boats on the Jersey shore.

How It's Done.
"Well, now, under normal conditions, we would get out an announcement describing Pierre Piquette as a captain of King Alfred of Belgium's horse-marines and very friendly, indeed, with the King himself. Two days before the contest we would get out a picture of Creator, the band leader, with his cap and medals on, and we would paint out the whiskers and smiling a picture of the other would send this out to the press as a photograph of Pierre Piquette, in full uniform, at a big municipal court reception over in Belgium."

Dr. Yeager concluded, "how would it sound if some truth-maniac should then send out an announcement stating that Pierre Piquette is a ten-round bum here tonight. The public's illusion and business would be ruined. Therefore, with the best interests of the profession at heart, I sincerely trust that Mr. Kearns and Dempsey will do their duty to the uplift and this dangerous craze for the truth will be nipped in the bud."

Dr. Yeager does not expect to be summoned before the grand jury on the ground that it would tend to humiliate and degrade a press agent to tell the truth.

Shea Wins on Foul.
Cleveland, Ohio, November 15.—(AP.) Eddie Shea, of Chicago, won on a foul from a Johnny Hill, Filipino featherweight in the eighth round of a ten-round bout here tonight. The scrap was a slow, uninteresting affair in which Shea held the lead throughout.

Chess Champ Loses.
Buenos Aires, November 15.—(AP.) Jose R. Capablanca, tonight scored his third victory in the world's chess championship series by a narrow margin. He defeated Alexander Alekhine, the Russian challenger. The end came after 70 moves.

Gene Tunney-Tex Rickard Break Looms

Receives Offer of $160,000 More to Fight Next Summer.

BY WHITNER CARY.

It was five minutes before the referee's whistle would send the Cavaliers of Old Virginia against the Bulldogs of Georgia. Under an October sun whose torrid rays were reminiscent of July, a little band of scarlet-clad gridiron warriors reclined on the grass just outside Sanford field.

Those scarlet-clad warriors were silent. Their faces were set. Not a voice was heard. For their feelings were too stirred for more vocal utterances. Their souls were too stunned for words. Their hearts were heavy. For those Red and Black players had just been told by Coach George Woodruff, for four years mentor at Georgia, that 1927 would mark his farewell appearance as their gridiron tutor.

Unfortunately the quasi-secrecy that envelops such gatherings prevents the public from knowing the exact philosophy that is used. History has been kinder to us on other dramatic occasions. We are taught from childhood that just before the Battle of the Pyramids, an affair that saw this fast-charging traitor of Napoleon run up a four-touchdown victory over the heavy English team, the Little Corporal, with his finger pointed toward the massive monument of stone, exclaimed: "Soldiers of France, the eyes of centuries look down upon you." During our formative years we also learned that Lord Nelson, just before the battle of Trafalgar, an engagement in which the English ships circled the French squadron's ends at will and ran up an imposing score, flashed this inspiring message to the British fleet: "England expects every man to do his duty."

Now whether the words that accompanied the announcement of Coach Woodruff's farewell reign over the gridiron destinies of the Bulldogs was couched in as dramatic phraseology as the above mentioned messages only the football players know.

Team Stands Out.

Whether this dearly beloved coach told his charges that it was his last year as their instructor and that he would like to see his five years of the part of the members of his team in the love that he bears for that team.

Woodruff belongs to that school of coaching that believes in leading rather than in driving his players. He is a strict disciplinarian, a stickler for training rules, and a coach that expects hard and painstaking work from his players. He will tolerate no laziness, sloppiness or slackness on the part of the members of his team.

Unfortunately the quasi-secrecy that envelops such gatherings prevents the public from knowing the exact philosophy that is used. History has been kinder to us on other dramatic occasions. We are taught from childhood that just before the Battle of the Pyramids, an affair that saw this fast-charging traitor of Napoleon run up a four-touchdown victory over the heavy English team, the Little Corporal, with his finger pointed toward the massive monument of stone, exclaimed: "Soldiers of France, the eyes of centuries look down upon you." During our formative years we also learned that Lord Nelson, just before the battle of Trafalgar, an engagement in which the English ships circled the French squadron's ends at will and ran up an imposing score, flashed this inspiring message to the British fleet: "England expects every man to do his duty."

Now whether the words that accompanied the announcement of Coach Woodruff's farewell reign over the gridiron destinies of the Bulldogs was couched in as dramatic phraseology as the above mentioned messages only the football players know.

Team Stands Out.

Whether this dearly beloved coach told his charges that it was his last year as their instructor and that he would like to see his five years of the part of the members of his team in the love that he bears for that team.

Woodruff belongs to that school of coaching that believes in leading rather than in driving his players. He is a strict disciplinarian, a stickler for training rules, and a coach that expects hard and painstaking work from his players. He will tolerate no laziness, sloppiness or slackness on the part of the members of his team.

And the love of those players for Coach Woodruff finds a full answer in the love that he bears for that team.

Oglethorpe Plays Run in Scrimmage at Tech Tuesday

Reserves Look Good Against Scrub Eleven

Another Secret Session Held by Regulars on Baseball Field.

BY BEN COTHMAN.

Oglethorpe formations were paraded at the Tech Tuesday afternoon as the team that started against S. T. plunged into the grind of hard work preparing for Oglethorpe. Meanwhile, the Jacked regulars took time at making vicious attacks on the tackling dummies and then retiring to the baseball field for another clandestine affair behind locked gates.

The team scrimmaging on the regular field had Shorty Smith behind the wheel; Fitzgerald and Horne at halves, and hard-plunging young Mr. DeVaughn at fullback; Binkley and Brumby at ends; Thrash and Hood at tackles; Westbrook and Lillard at guard and Kusk at center.

DeVaughn was keeping up his good plunging display last Saturday and tore through the scrub line for plenty yardage. The scrubs got a chance to run their Oglethorpe plays for a short while, but most of the time the underdogged team was on offense and covering a great deal of ground. Running around and the team wasn't so good, but cutting off tackle and shooting DeVaughn through the line, the boys looked very good.

All of the crimples have recovered. Ben Largent, who received a bad leg injury some five weeks back, was out in uniform and watching the scrimmage. Everyone is in good shape for the next three games and will probably stay that way.

Speculation among the railbirds at Tech is very rife as to just what is happening at these sessions held on the baseball field. The team may be scrimmaging, may be holding its hands, talking over weather or crop conditions, or anything else. But no one, except the players and coaches Alexander and Miller, knows what is happening. However, it is highly probable that these sessions are being held behind the closed gates, fans will see an example before the season is over.

Every day is being the Georgia game closer. The entire squad realizes it. From watching the squad as it practices, one gathers the impression that no matter what happens, Saturday's winner will realize that there's been a game of football played.

PETREL RATS, CHATTANOOGA TO PLAY SAT.

BY FRED McEACHIN.

The Oglethorpe freshman football team will journey to Marietta Saturday morning where the Rats will meet the strange freshmen outfit from Chattanooga university.

The Petrel Rats have developed one of the strongest teams ever produced by the first year men at Oglethorpe and are going up against the Chattanoogaogs with the expectations of bringing home the bacon.

But this will be no easy task, as the boys from Chattanooga have turned in a most impressive record so far this year. Like their varsity brothers, they always put out a good team and are hard to beat.

Young Petrels Lose.

In their game last week with the University of Florida Rats, the Oglethorpe Frosh failed to stop their slashing attack and retained home with the short end of a 37-0 score. This defeat marks the only one for the locals out of four road trips and they will endeavor to better their record against their rivals in Marietta Saturday.

In view of the fact that the varsity teams of the two universities meet next week in their annual Thanksgiving clash will add a bit of color to the freshman game, both trying to set a good example for their respective teams of upper classmen.

Epworth to Hold Meeting Tonight

A special meeting of the Epworth League Athletic association will be held tonight at the association's headquarters, 1101 Georgia Savings Bank building at 6 o'clock.

Final arrangements for the opening of the basketball season which will officially begin December 6 will be made. The house warming will take place Friday, December 8.

Several hundred dollars have been spent on the court placing it in first class condition.

All teams should register at this meeting in order to get in the schedule.

KNOWS HIS MARES

The smiling countenance above is that of Jimmy Londos, who will wrestle here Thursday night. Londos is very adept at the use of the flying mare, and has used it in defeating numerous opponents.

Nick Gotch to Wrestle Jimmy Londos Here Thursday. Will Mark First Appearance in Atlanta for Gotch.

The flying mare, the hold that has sent more grapplers to defeat than any other in the game, and one that has been classed as being as dangerous as the strangle hold, will be used by Jimmy Londos, the popular Greek star, when he tackles Nick Gotch in one of the three feature matches offered at the city auditorium Thursday night.

Most of the Atlanta fans very well know, is versatile both in the application and breaking of all holds, yet in his engagements here he has exhibited considerable partiality to the flying mare and occasions when that trick failed him have been very rare indeed.

Gotch, who is being introduced to the Atlanta fans for the first time, is a stranger in wrestling circles here, but in view of Matchmaker John Contos' personal guarantee that Gotch is a good opponent for Londos the fans are willing to let it ride at that.

Very few men in the wrestling game can beat the popular Londos. He is clever and last spring he thrilled the fans at the city auditorium by beating Joe Stecher so hard and furiously that the champion of the world was limited to a draw in a two-hour bout.

Scotch, Indian Grapplers.

In addition to the thrill of the combat between Londos and Gotch the fans Thursday night will have the opportunity of seeing for themselves just how good Scotch and Indian grapplers really are.

"Scotty" McDougal, who holds the heavyweight title of Scotland, meets Jim Browning, a local favorite in a match that is limited to one hour, the first to register two falls being declared the winner.

In the other Pippo Wilcox, an Indian, will be pitted against Jack Washburn, whose latest appearance here was in a spectacular bout with Ed "Strangler" Lewis, claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship.

Both Wilcox and McDougal are making their debut in an Atlanta ring and each, like each, comes well recommended by Contos. In his two and a half years as matchmaker in Atlanta, he has picked few mediocre wrestlers for his shows.

Good Wrestlers.

In fact, the fans have reached the point where they are quite willing to accept the matchmaker's word concerning the merits of the wrestlers that he offers here.

Wilcox, the Indian, is naturally wiry and speedy and while Washburn will have a slight weight advantage he will be hard pressed from start to finish.

"Scotty" McDougal is said to be as cunning as his name and race implies and it will be no surprise to see the Browning-McDougal match equal the other two in the matter of producing thrills and excitement for the fans.

Matchmaker Contos reports that there has been a heavy demand for the tickets, which have been on sale for several days at Chess' place, Piedmont hotel cigar stand and at Dandy and Piedmont hatters.

The attitude of the Massachusetts state athletic commission in the matter can best be judged by the following telegram received by the New York state athletic commission today from Secretary Paul Norton, of the Bay State body:

"Commissioner talked with Sharkey's manager (Jack Buckley) late this (Monday) afternoon. He made no mention of any trouble. Will have Sharkey examined and inform you of his true condition."

Chairman James A. Farley, of the New York commission, after reading the telegram, announced that if the Massachusetts board finds that Sharkey was not hurt, both he and his manager and Rickard will be set down here indefinitely. Action on the case will be taken on Friday if the report of the probe is received by then.

In all probability Tommy Loughran will defend his world's light-heavyweight championship against Jimmy Slattery in Madison Square Garden on January 6. Matchmaker Jess McMahon will close for the match tomorrow if the Buffalo battler modifies his original demand for 25 per cent of the receipts.

Major Clubs Are Limited To 40 Players

Shortage of Good Players Brings About New Rule by Advisory Council.

Chicago, November 15.—(P)—The rejuvenated advisory council of major league baseball ended a two-day session tonight, handing out copies of 18 proposed amendments to big league procedure. All related to the administrative end of the game, and none to the playing rules.

Since the supply of skilled players is not equal to the demand, begins one amendment, "no club shall have under its control, in any manner, more than 40 players at any time."

The draft problem was referred to in several of the new rules, which will be submitted to the joint session of the major leagues, December 15, at New York. None of the amendments mentioning the draft indicated any change in the selection process by which the majors lay claim to minor league players in those circuits which permit the drafting.

Landis Calls Meeting.

Accompanying the copies of the rules, Commissioner Landis issued the formal call for the joint meeting in New York next month.

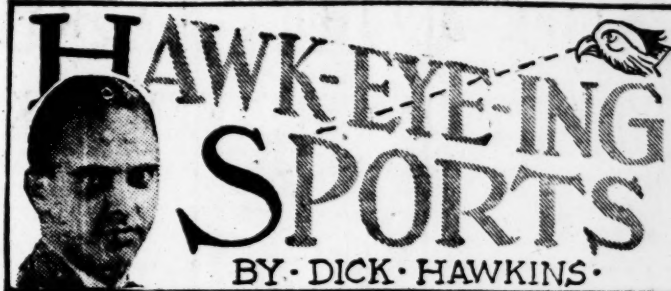

A rule for handling postponed or tied games, to prevent the transfer of those contests such as the Cincinnati-Pittsburgh case of last summer, was agreed upon by the council. Postponed contests must be played on the grounds where they were originally scheduled, before any more regularly scheduled games can be played.

The dates assigned for the regularly scheduled games shall be moved forward. The session scheduled may, however, arrange explicitly in advance for playing off postponements in the visiting team's park.

Most of the amendments were accepted by the council. The rule forbidding umpires to accept payment for reporting promising players to any club in his league received the addition today of a penalty of at least $500, aimed at either the umpire or the club.

Didn't Really Want To.

A New York man tried three times unsuccessfully to commit suicide when he had to do so to go to Mexico and try to be president.

"Tickets We Haven't Got." YES, WE HAVE NO TICKETS TO THE TECH-GEORGIA GAME AT GRANT FIELD ON DECEMBER 3.

Yes, we can NOT buy you any tickets to the Tech-Georgia game.

Yes, we have NO MORE "DRAG" at Tech than you have in the matter of making seats for the Georgia-Tech football game where seats do not now exist.

Yes, we do NOT expect that the above statements will keep the demand for Tech-Georgia tickets down in the future.

We can pay your gas bill, assassinate your creditors and even give you the address of a very expert internal chemist, but we CAN'T get your Tech-Georgia tickets for the very ample reason that just at the present time there ain't no "tech" thing—very much.

If this will give you any peace of mind we might suggest that much lumber is in place on Grant field and many workmen are busily engaged in assembling this lumber into temporary seats in every available space where there are now no seats. We have no official announcement of this fact, but observation tells that such is being done.

Which prologue leads up to the discussion that is on the tip of every tongue in the south where football is talked, and that is everywhere except at the Georgia School for the Deaf, where they still talk about it in a different way—the discussion of the impending battle of Tech and Georgia for The Constitution cup and the Dixie title.

Yesterday we drifted into the usual conversation with an old Tech grad out at the flats and the opinion of this man bearing on any game ever played or to be played by the Tornado is worth listening to.

Here is what he said: "I have been watching Tech play since before the present century started and have missed but very few games played by the Tornado during that time and have never missed a Tech-Georgia game, but this year's game draws more interest than has ever been drawn by any one game around these parts."

On the streets, in the office, at the club, even at the movie, on every hand you hear the discussion of the coming conflict. The consensus of opinion seems to favor the mighty Bulldog team, but the Tech followers recall year's back when the same condition existed and the decision was reversed.

The mammoth Constitution silver trophy was put in play in 1925 and it was won that year by Georgia Tech. Last year Georgia took it away. This year the winner keeps it as a permanent possession.

The man who thinks that cup is already won by either team is not considering something which does not appear in the "dope." That indefinable something which brings about a complete metamorphosis in Tech and Georgia teams when they meet each other on the field of battle.

And we have no tickets.

Breach of Promise Suit Forces Marriage

Des Moines, November 15.—(P)—Charles W. Cissell, shortstop sold to the Chicago American League Baseball club for $123,000, was married today to Miss Bernice Ryner, of Valley Junction.

Their marriage is expected to end charges filed against Cissell by Miss Ryner before he returned to his home in St. Louis after playing baseball with the Pacific Coast league.

"We always wanted to get married," Cissell said as he purchased a wedding ring and obtained a marriage license.

GEORGIA-TIDE FROSH MEET ON ROME GRID

Rome, Ga., November 15.—(Special.)—As a preliminary to the football game in Birmingham on Thanksgiving day when the varsity teams of the University of Georgia and the University of Alabama meet, the two freshmen football teams of the universities meet in Rome Friday afternoon, November 18.

The game will be played at Barron park, beginning at 2 o'clock, and will be one of the junior varsity classes of the south. Football fans throughout this section of the state and Alabama are already making reservations to the game and indications are that a record-breaking crowd will be in attendance.

This is the third annual game between the two teams that has been played in Rome.

Both athletic associations were well pleased with the officials who handled the game last year and the same ones will be in charge this year. They are Eddie Reese, referee; H. C. Brewer, umpire; Charlie Scott, field judge; T. D. Caldwell, head linesman.

The University of Georgia team will reach the city the night before the game and will make its headquarters at the General Forrest hotel, while the University of Alabama team will not reach Rome until the morning of the game.

Possibly.

Brown's football team used to be known as the Iron Men. After recent games it should be the Irony Men.

Scrimmage Slated Today For Petrels

Birds Take It Easy Tuesday in Preparing for Game Saturday.

BY FRED McEACHIN.

The Stormy Petrels of Oglethorpe university went through their second practice of the week on Hermance field Tuesday afternoon and now only three days remain in which to round into shape for the big game of the year—the clash with Georgia Tech on Grant field Saturday afternoon.

The practice Tuesday failed to be as strenuous as was expected. The varsity was excused from the rough work and instead spent the afternoon running signals and working on new formations which are to be thrust at the Yellow Jackets.

It is almost certain that Robertson will give his cohorts plenty of action in the practice this afternoon. A scrimmage against the rats is slated to take place behind locked gates, all spectators being barred from the field.

Subs Battle Rats.

In the workout Tuesday a team consisting mostly of subs battled the rats until long after dusk had fallen and showed plenty of pep and fight in the scrap. White and Boswell looked particularly good in the backfield, breaking through the frosh line and circling the ends for many good gains.

The rats were on the defense during the entire performance and did not get the opportunity of working any Tech plays against their upper classmen. It is expected, however, that they will be given the chance of running Jacked plays against the varsity in the practice this afternoon.

It was announced Tuesday that Asa Wall, giant sophomore fullback, would probably start the game against the Tornado, which will give considerable to the Petrel backfield, especially strengthening their defensive game. All of the other regulars are in good shape with the exception of Shepherd and Bass.

Benny Bass, recognized in Pennsylvania as the world's featherweight champion, has agreed to meet the winner of the Bud Taylor-Tony Canzoneri bout to be fought here on December 1. The fight will be staged sometime in January and should go far toward clarifying the featherweight muddle.

BOXING NEWS

BY JACK FARRELL

New York, November 15.—There is a growing suspicion up Boston way that Jack Sharkey, the Lithuanian, did not hurt his little finger in training, as reported, and that he and Tex Rickard called off his fight with Tom Henney, scheduled for Friday night at Madison Square Garden, here, as a result, rather, of a severe fracture of the advance sale.

The attitude of the Massachusetts state athletic commission in the matter can best be judged by the following telegram received by the New York state athletic commission today from Secretary Paul Norton, of the Bay State body:

"Commissioner talked with Sharkey's manager (Jack Buckley) late this (Monday) afternoon. He made no mention of any trouble. Will have Sharkey examined and inform you of his true condition."

Chairman James A. Farley, of the New York commission, after reading the telegram, announced that if the Massachusetts board finds that Sharkey was not hurt, both he and his manager and Rickard will be set down here indefinitely. Action on the case will be taken on Friday if the report of the probe is received by then.

THE CONNOISSEUR

Here's Van de View (whose faculties supposedly are keen) Now stranded on a country road and out of gasoline. His indicator tells him and he must believe his eyes. Though he hates to think he could have been so utterly unwise.

But he's lucky in his passengers, so very sympathetic. Who are willing to assist and so very energetic. There's Slim Sally in the leather coat who'll go and get some more. And he thinks he's never half appreciated her before.

Leather-Coated Passengers Help Mr. Van de View

She tries to catch a ride, but all she finds is just a truck. And so Amelia takes the road to try for better luck. She flags a roaring motor car, but doesn't quite succeed. Despite her swagger leather coat that's lined with smartest tweed.

So Doris turns her collar up and buttons it with vim. And vows that she will stop the next and go to town for him. A promise is a promise and she makes this one come true— There's not another fellow so well served as Van de View.

DAILY CALENDAR OF SOCIAL EVENTS

Jewish Woman's Club Sponsored Musical.

The Jewish Woman's club sponsored a concert last Sunday evening at the clubrooms on Washington street, at which Henry Alexander gave the opening address, stressing the importance of the Jewish people retaining their identity and individuality. He pointed out that in losing the identity of the Jewish character, as such, the loss would be equally as great to civilization at large as to the Jewish people as a race. He commented on the wisdom of the Jewish Woman's club in having engaged Mrs. Sarah L. S. Spector as their social director, expression of her training in social service and her understanding of social conditions.

Seven musical numbers arranged by Meyer Segal, conductor. The program concluded with a piano recital by Professor Mayer, a duet by Professor Mayer and his gifted pupil, Lena Efel, and songs rendered by Nora Al-len Volpi, with Signor Volpi at the piano.

Mrs. Spector gave an address in which she emphasized the importance of social, esthetic and educational pursuits, and announced that on Monday, November 14, at 3 o'clock, registration began for classes in esthetic dancing, expression, music and vocal training. The office at the club will be open for registration every afternoon this week. Mrs. Lynwood Jester made the special price to the club of 50 cents a lesson. Signor Volpi's special price for vocal training has not yet been decided on but it will surely not exceed the others.

Dr. George Chait is ready to begin his class in dental hygiene, but is waiting for Dr. Shallenberger to begin his courses in sex hygiene so as to adjust the evenings for the lectures. The classes in literature and psychology will begin right after Christmas. # They Wouldn't Believe

By Roy Vickers

SYNOPSIS
On the way to Donald Briley's house at Robinson for luncheon, Connie Elmore, Donald's fiancée, tells her friend, Olive Watson, that Donald stands a chance of inheriting half a million from the estate of old Harroway, a friend of Donald's father.

Olive and Connie share a flat in London. Olive is secretly in love with Donald but sincerely pleased at Connie's good fortune in winning him.

Noodle and Querk, collectors handling the Harroway estate, are crooked and plot to cheat. Donald Briley of the fortune by having a spurious heir appear whose claim is prior to Donald's. In the midst of the plotting Augustus Briley, Donald's father, presumed to have died on the Titanic, calls on Connie. Querk suggests to Noodle that he take Briley to Harroway house and there, with the assistance of Querk's tool, Wade, dispose of Briley. He decides to visit her old nurse, who is now caretaker of Harroway house. Mrs. Jones is out, but Connie finds the key and lets herself in to wait for her. She hears strange noises in the library and, going to investigate, she sees Noodle and another man kill Mr. Briley, whom she recognizes from her portrait. Rushing out of the house Connie stumbles into Mr. Querk. While telling her story Querk pushes the bell and sends a signal to the murderer. Connie sees a policeman and, calling him, she proceeds to the library and Connie asks Querk to open the secret panel in the wall where she had seen the men place the body. It is empty. Querk accompanies her to the police station, where she tells her story to the police superintendent. Querk intimates that she imagine the scene, and, in explanation, Connie goes to see Olive, who believes her story.

Querk requests Noodle to come to the superintendent's office and he presents his alibi, which the officer accepts. The two lawyers proceed to Wade's office, where old man Turle and his son, the spurious heir, await them. The old man dies just after they walk into the room.

The next morning Connie calls on Querk and meets young Jones there. She recognizes him as her old nurse's son, but does not know that he has been posing as Henry Turle, Jr. Querk later pretends that Connie imagined she saw young Jones. He tells Olive that Noodle is about to bring criminal suit against Connie unless Olive, as her secret friend, has her committed to a private institution at Marston which he recommends. While Donald is visiting Connie at Marston house a letter is found buried in his garden. Olive, sent out on the case by her newspaper, meets and warns Donald. She arranges a hiding place for him in London. She later helps Connie to escape from Marston.

INSTALLMENT LXXXII.
Olive was standing with her back to the door, her hands clasped behind her head.

"Not until we've had a little chat, Mr. Jones."

"I'm going, I tell you! Stand away from that door," she said.

He had seized Olive by the shoulder and the next moment had drawn back his arm with a cry of pain. A pin had penetrated some eighth of an inch of his flesh.

"I'll go deeper the next time and there are two of them," said Olive, brandishing the pins. "Besides, if you do get past the pins, you'll simply run into the arms of a detective. Now, just drop being theatrical and come along with me."

She led the way into the sitting room.

It was most mention of the detectives than thought of the pins that drove the spirit out of Querk's dream. He followed Olive into the sitting room.

"Sit down," commanded Olive. "If you've got any sense, you'll tell the truth."

"I may as well tell you," she added, "that you can't save yourself from being prosecuted fraud and impersonation in passing yourself off as Turle's son. The only question is whether you will also be tried for murder."

"Murder!" echoed the young man, horrified. "There's no murder in it. The old man died naturally. I saw him myself. I was with him when he died."

The man's words rang true. Olive looked across at Connie. If an old man had died a natural death—

"Of course that sort of thing is all very well but it won't help you much," she said contemptuously. "You knew you were playing a part when you went through that elaborate farce with the taxi driver. Or would you have us believe that the old man died a natural death in the taxi?"

"It wasn't the same old man," he protested.

"I know that perfectly well," snapped Olive. "The old man who got into the taxi and was driven to Robinson was a fake. When he got there he walked outside through the garden and out into the back without ever going near the house."

"Oh!" Jones exclaimed. "That's how they did it, eh? I wondered."

"Be very careful," warned Olive. "That brings you into the conspiracy to murder and procure the wrongful conviction of an innocent man."

"That's where I've been had, miss," he blurted out. "They've used me."

"That was Wade," answered Jones. "There's one other where your story doesn't fit the facts," she pointed out. "You've said the newspaper, of course. The body found in Mr. Briley's garden was partly mutilated—the face was unrecognizable. I don't know anything about that, miss—I've told you I don't."

C. A. Barrett, Pioneer Rail Engineer, Succumbs at 76

Funeral services for Charles Augustus Barrett, 76, pioneer Atlantan and one of the most romantic figures in state railroad history, who died quietly at his home here last Tuesday night at a private hospital following a heart attack at his home shortly after 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. Barrett had not been in the best of health for the past several months, but his condition had not been bad enough to warrant his retirement from active business life. He went about his daily tasks Tuesday and left his office about 4:30 o'clock, members of his family accompanied him to the hospital where he died. He was a member of the Greenfield lodge, No. 400, F. & A. M., and was a steward in the Haywood Memorial Methodist church.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by H. M. Patterson & Son, in charge.

He is survived by his widow, a brother, J. H. Glenn; a niece, Miss Sarah Glenn, and a cousin, Miss Annie Johnson.

GARDENS MANAGER GIVEN $200 FINE ON DRUNK COUNT

N. R. Barrow, manager of Peachtree Gardens fashionable northside supper club which was recently closed following a riot, pleaded guilty Tuesday to being drunk in a public place and was fined $200 by Judge Earl S. Camp in Fulton superior court, who presided in the absence of Judge G. H. Howard.

Barrow was also charged with assault and battery in connection with his alleged assault on E. L. Guyot, but this case was continued until a later date.

Myrtle Goldman and Jessie Bailey, who are alleged to have figured in the riot at the supper club were fined $50 after pleading guilty to charges of being drunk in a public place. Louise Frei, who has been held in Fulton prison since the riot, was also charged with assault and battery, but she was unable to make bond and Judge Camp said she had already served enough time in jail and therefore he was lenient with her case.

THE DAY IN FINANCE

BY R. L. BARNUM

New York, November 15.—From October 4 to October 20 the average price of 50 representative stocks declined a fraction over 16 points. Since October 20 there has been a recovery of a fraction over 11 points, which means that two-thirds of the decline from the new high has been recovered.

From past experience Wall street has learned that in a major bear market there is frequently a recovery of one-third of a decline occurred in one movement followed by another decline to a new low level. If the recovery now under way runs much further Wall street will conclude that it is a new high and the 16-point decline last month will make a new high above the October 4 record high level.

Wall street was greatly interested in Mellon's talk on general trade, the first since Coolidge made his "I do not choose to run" statement in August. Mellon does not make any prediction as to the future and he does admit that business is spotty. However, he says that improvement in some lines, especially steel, is offsetting the slowing down elsewhere.

Better After Christmas.

Bankers may be of the opinion that the steel trade will show considerable improvement in production after Christmas. It is believed in such quarters the improvement will come from increased buying for the construction of the railroads and for the automobile industry. The feeling is that this buying will get production up to some extent around 85 per cent of capacity less than 65 per cent at the present time. No decided recovery is expected, however, in steel selling prices because of excessive production facilities.
